Book proposal under development

Personal Identity/Social Space: Urban Gay Men of Color Navigating Neighborhoods and Identities. Authors: James Egan, Victoria Frye, and Beryl Koblin

Based on in-depth interviews with 50 gay and bisexual men of color born in New York City, this volume examines the interface between urban space and the development and experience of sexual and racial identities. Using accounts from men who discovered their sexual orientations and identities in close proximity to one of America's "gay meccas," which also happens to be their hometown, the authors explore how social relations along various axes of interaction, race/racism, sexual identity/heterosexism, social and physical safety, and social and kin networks, play out in the social and physical spaces of New York City.
