

Take advantage of our city's resources by enrolling in classes at other institutions!

The Pittsburgh Council on Higher Education (PCHE) is a voluntary, multi-purpose consortium of ten accredited colleges and universities in Allegheny County whose goal it is to give students the best opportunity for shared resources, insights and information. Students who are enrolled full-time (minimum nine credits per term) in the Graduate School of Public Health may take advantage of such resources at:

- Carnegie Mellon University
- Duquesne University
- LaRoche College
- Robert Morris University

Among others! Through association and collaboration, the diverse membership of PCHE works to enhance the intellectual, cultural, and economic vitality of Pittsburgh. Cooperation through PCHE strengthens each individual institution, its faculty, its administration, and its student body.

Check out course catalogs of these institutions on their websites, and talk to your advisor about cross-enrollment.