Updates for Syllabi & Fall 2020 Syllabi Departmental Review, Jessica Burke
Dr. Jessica Burke brought two syllabus statements to the committee’s attention: the diversity statement and a university statement on COVID-19 pandemic compliance. She asked the committee members whether “future proofing” the diversity statement by removing specific contact information for the associate dean of diversity and inclusion were possible. Dr. Cindy Bryce stated that students would find it helpful to have a specific name and e-mail address in the statement so they would not have to search for specifics elsewhere. Robin Leaf suggested linking to the school’s leadership Web page as a potential solution.

Dr. Jim Fabisiak asked if it would be more convenient to use “course director” instead of “course instructor” on the diversity statement, and some committee members wondered if students would know who the course director was. Dr. Elizabeth Felter suggested a compromise and using “course primary instructor or director.” She also asked if the Title IX syllabus statement needed updating, and Jessie said that she could check with the Title IX office to make sure we had the most updated version on course syllabi.

Regarding the university COVID-19 pandemic compliance statement, Dr. Nancy Glynn asked if it was necessary to include this statement on syllabi, especially for the fall term as the semester is already underway. Committee members thought it was unnecessary to include this statement on syllabi for the fall.
ACTION: The committee can look at the statements and syllabus template to see if there are any more changes, and Dr. Jessica Burke will check with Title IX office to confirm that the EPCC committee is sharing the most updated version.

Review of spring and summer core course evaluations, EPCC Chair

Committee members viewed the overall instructor effectiveness score for the spring and summer 2020 core courses. The overall trend showed that students were understanding with instructors as they adapted to the unusual times and/or it could be inferred that instruction was high-quality. The 0% response rate for PUBHLT 2034 from summer 2020 was concerning. Dr. Andriy Bandos mentioned that biostatistics faculty had had some success in increasing student response rates by assigning a bonus point for students who complete the OMET survey. Dr. Elizabeth Felter suggested utilizing a departmental staff person to anonymize the process.

ACTION: No action necessary. However, committee members can encourage their fellow faculty members to try for higher response rates.

Update on EPCC Forms, Robin Leaf and Kimberly Rehak

Robin Leaf thanked the committee members for providing feedback on forms for EPCC applications. She said that she and Kimberly Rehak will work with the new chair to get new forms up on the EPCC website in the next week or two. She explained that web forms that were in the works will no longer be able to be used on the website.

ACTION: Robin Leaf will inform the committee when the new forms are up.

Approval of July Meeting Minutes, All [vote required]

The committee voted to approve the minutes provided that Elizabeth Van Nostrand’s name be added to the list of attendees and a type in the holistic admissions section be corrected from “application” to “applicants.”

The open meeting was adjourned at 2:30pm for a closed session student record review.
